Border/ Immigration	News 4 @ Noon	4/13/11	12:00:35 to 12:02:00		Customs and Border Patrol Protection is in the process replacing nearly three miles of an outdated fence near Nogales. The goal is to make the wall stronger and more difficult to breach.
Border/ Immigration	News 4 @ 5	5/10/11	5:01:42 to 5:04:12		Today in El Paso, Texas, President Obama called on Washington to fix the broken immigration system. He also renewed his call for comprehensive immigration reform. A tougher climb now with more Republicans in the House and Senate. During his tour, the President called the border more secure than ever. Our local lawmakers disagree and reacted to the President's first border visit in Texas. Governor Jan Brewer spoke out about the security of the border, and the big question seemed to be why didn't the President do his first visit to the border in Arizona? Senator John McCain released a statement with Senator Jon Kyl on 5/10, stated that they will extend another invitation to the President to visit the Tucson sector.
Border/ Immigration	News 4 @ 5	5/25/11	5:04:36 to 5:06:58		Violence along the border has had people talk about increasing the number of border patrol agents for awhile now, but what about customs officers? Business owners in Nogales said the ports of entry are severely under staffed and it's hurting business. Three of the business owners headed to the state capitol pleading for help. The businessmen that spoke to lawmakers all agreed increasing the number of border patrol agents is important but they were there to remind law makers that taking care of the legal traffic coming through is just as important as taking care of the illegal traffic.
Border/ Immigration	News 4 @ 6	6/24/11	6:11:26 to 6:13:11		Politicians explore our U.S./Mexican border regarding issues or concerns, why can't you? Gray Line tours is now taking people who are interested on a fact finding mission. You can jump on a bus for about $75.00 and head south to the border to witness what you hear about the border.
Border/ Immigration	News 4 @ 5	6/30/11	5:22:28 to 5:24:14		Border Officials said the goal for the fence replacement n the southwest border of Arizona is to increase durability and to improve security. They also said that construction of the newly improved fence will stretch close to 3 miles will be very effective when securing our border. So far, 2 1/2 miles of the project has been completed and they still have a quarter of a mile to go.

Community	News 4 @ 10	5/6/11	10:12:07 to 10:14:16		Any idea how many traffic signals you pass through on your way to work or school? There are 430 signals in Tucson but not all of them are the same. Some are so-called "leading left turn signals." Confusing, confounding, and in some cases, the reason intersections get so clogged. So, what's the deal? Why aren't all traffic lights created or calibrated equally? City Traffic Officials said those three dozen leading left turn signals are at intersections with the highest numbers of cars turning left, they go first, so cars going straight aren't blocked. You may also noticed that there are not photo radar systems in place where there are leading left turns. Giving you at least one less thing to worry about as you get around town.

Community	News 4 @ 6	6/28/11	6:04:41 to 6:06:27		There are all sorts of iconic neon signs in Tucson. And some have withstood the test of time in a big way. The most updated version of Tucson's sign code puts heavy restrictions on them. Right now, if a business wants to take a sign down to restore it, they cannot put it back up. But that restriction could be changing. There's actually a sign committee pushing to get the city to approve an ordinance that would allow historic neon signs to be restored free and clear. Whether the ordinance will go through is up to the city council, and it's expected for them to look at it this summer. The new ordinance creates a definition a process as well as a criteria for refurbishing the signs.

Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 10	4/11/11	10:00:10 to 10:02:44		In February, we learned about gas station credit card skimmers. A criminal operation that since the second week of March has spread to 27 gas stations within city limits. Gas pumps are being rigged with these skimmers. When you swipe your debit or credit card to pay for gas, the skimmers read and save your information. Criminals retrieve it, and in most cases, make a replica of your card, for future cash withdrawals. Tucson police have stopped counting individuals as victims because banks are absorbing the hits. Cops said they've been working with gas stations all over Southern Arizona, conducting daily inspections and training them on how to detect the skimming devices. That may be the reason the scammers have moved on but chances are they'll be back so it's important to be cautious at all times.
Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 5	4/12/11	5:00:28 to 5:02:38		Lawsuits, FBI investigations and mismanaged millions. This is the story of Rio Nuevo. Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 10	5/11/11	10:00:10 to 10:02:34		A man is banned from going anywhere near the U of A campus for the next 6 months. There are multiple reports of alleged harassment against females on campus. According to University Police, he hasn't been charged but the alert has been sent to everyone at the U of A. University Police said they've had several reports of Jokipii leaving pamphlets of an article "Liberating American from Israel" with rounds of 9mm bullets around campus. When they questioned him about it, UA PD had him involuntarily committed. The FBI confirmed that they are part of the investigation. According to search warrants, they got involved because of threatening email sent to West Point Military Academy. They say Jokipii was apprehended and questioned at Tucson airport.
Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 10	5/13/11	10:02:21 to 10:04:43		A Tucson man is behind bars charged with making and using chemical weapons. He was connected to the incident that happened in 2009. He is accused of putting chemical devices in the front and backyard of a northwest side couple's home. Those chemicals, when lit, produced a football field sized cloud of chlorine gas. Neighbors had to evacuate their homes. Some neighbors spoke about the incident and are happy to finally have some answers.
Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 10	5/15/11	10:10:10 to 10:12:52		If you're like a third of American drivers, then you've fallen asleep at the wheel. The National Sleep Foundation said six out of ten of us admit driving drowsy in the past. News 4 showed us how driving drowsy can be as deadly as drunk driving.
Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 10	5/16/11	10:12:37 to 10:14:31		When inmates get booked into the Pima County Jail they may try to sneak stuff in. It's not unexpected, although the items may be shocking... from narcotics, bags of crystal meth, knives, weapons, and even cash. Inmates getting booked have to go through a metal detector much like the airports, also like the airport morpho detection machine. It detects any drugs that anybody has on their hands, their clothing, any part of their body that gets tested, and it gets done randomly. One more tool to keep the jail safe and secure as possible.
Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 6	5/23/11	6:05:30 to 6:07:42		Officers cannot stop you if they see that you don't have a seat belt on or if your kids aren't in car seats. Arizona does have a seat belt law but it's secondary which means you can only be ticketed for not wearing a seat belt unless you've already been pulled over for some other offense. A month long enforcement called "Click or Ticket" started at the end of May. It's an effort to save more lives on Arizona highways. Tucson Police added additional traffic officers on the streets and they looked for folks weren't wearing seatbelts or who don't have their children in car seats. Officers didn't hand at warnings during this campaign so buckle up Arizona, it's the law.
Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 5	5/26/11	5:01:48 to 5:03:58		Churches on the northwest side of town are being vandalized and broken into. Thieves weren't able to break into the collection box, but a women reportedly walked into a church, asking for assistance, and in turn helped herself to the wallet of an employee. While the collection box was vandalized, we're not sure if the two incidents are related. Investigators believe they were able to collect fingerprints which may be useful. Sheriff's Investigators have no suspects and are asking for the public's help.

Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 10	6/6/11	10:11:34 to 10:14:38		In this country one in five pedestrians killed by vehicles are victims of hit and runs. Fatal or not, in most cities the number of hit and runs have gone up. Nationally, hit and runs are up close to 25% in just the last decade. In Tucson, there were over 2,200 hit and runs last year. We found that as more and more drivers run from their actions the victims suffer even more. A study done by AAA found that illegal immigration is causing serious hit and run problems. The study said the seven states with the highest numbers of illegal immigrants including Arizona are the top seven states for hit and run fatalities.
Crime & Law Enforcement	News 4 @ 5	6/1/11	5:05:30 to 5:07:30		90 steal grates have been stolen and the suspects are still on the loose. People could receive serious injuries if they come across an uncovered pothole. It's a serious drop. Some residents said they've never even thought about someone steal the grates. And they definitely never thought about what would happen if they were just driving along and it wasn't there, until now. It can do serious damage to your car, or someone could fall in the man hole. Signs and tape are up around the holes while they wait for replacements that cost $300 to replace. Police don't have any suspects but they think it involves multiple people likely using some mechanical equipment like a crane or hydraulic system to make off with they heavy steal grates. They are also working with local scrap yards to get information but so far they have nothing. You are asked to call 911 if you know anything about this crime.
Economy	News 4 @ 10	4/3/11	10:11:04 to 10:12:27		The 4th Avenue Street Fair was held 4/1-3. Organizers said it was a good weekend for them, and for our local economy. The fair holds around 400 artists and booths each year, and it draws between 200 and 300 thousand people. This year, they estimated about 250,000 people were out, and 10% of that number was from out of town visitors.
Economy	News 4 @ 5	4/21/11	5:03:10 to 5:05:43		When it comes to unemployment, teens are suffering and a national report shows Arizona's one of the worst states. Teen unemployment is at almost 30%. News 4 reported why this could lead to bigger problems.
Economy	News 4 @ 10	5/3/11	10:02:36 to 10:04:53		The city has put the final touches on a new budget for fiscal year 2012 which kicked in 6/30. ON the table was a 1.3 billion dollar budget with big cuts to several agencies like police, fire and parks and recreation. On 5/3, the public got the chance to weigh in on the matter. One way the city can avoid carrying over the 9.5 million dollar debt is to sell off some city property. That option is still on the table.
Economy	News 4 @ 10	5/9/11	10:13:19 to 10:15:45		In Tucson, when the economy tanked, schools were hit hard. Nine schools in the Tucson Unified School District closed in the Spring. It was a budgetary move but enrollment was a factor. Now, we wonder, what's happening to those abandoned playgrounds and empty classrooms? And, how much is the district spending per year to keep these empty schools? The district spends 50 to 80K a year per empty school for maintenance which parents aid would be better spent directly on kids. The district also told us demolition of the schools would cost at the very least 500K per building. Along with asbestos abatement and more. Also, the week of 5/16, there will be a campaign to try and sell the buildings.

Economy	News 4 @ 4	5/9/11	4:39:53 to 4:44:03	Felipe Garcia, Vice President of Community Affairs and Mexico Department of Metropolitan Tucson Convention and Visitor's Bureau	Most people know that Arizona depends on tourism. What you may not know is the amount of money that Mexican visitors spend in our state. Felipe Garcia, Vice President of Community Affairs and Mexico Department of Metropolitan Tucson Convention and Visitor's Bureau, spoke about the money Mexican visitors pump into our economy.
Economy	News 4 @ 6	5/12/11	6:00:08 to 6:02:28		An oversupply of homes in Arizona lead to soaring vacancies across the state. The U.S. Census Bureau said Arizona added more than 655,000 new housing units between 2000 and 2010. The state had almost 3M single family homes and apartments in 2010. The number of vacant homes in the state soared to nearly 1 in 10. The reason is due to builders building too many homes, and the recession. Tucson has 3,300 vacant properties that haven't sold. One thousand of those properties are foreclosures. Realtor experts said the biggest tool to get vacant properties sold are price and condition of the home.
Economy	News 4 @ 6	5/17/11	6:00:01 to 6:01:49		How does the high prices at the pump impact the price of everything else you buy for your family? Most people fear everything will be more expensive. News 4 spoke to Eugene Gotwalt, an Economics Instructor at PCC. He said events in the Middle East don't necessarily disrupt supply. Refineries have to switch from winter blends to summer blends in the Spring which results in higher prices. Gotwalt said food prices will tick up a little as it costs more to get staple items like bread and milk on store shelves. He also said it's a misunderstanding to think everything will cost more because of the price of gas. He cited the Consumer Price Index over the past 12 months... home furnishings, clothing, communications, computer prices have actually fallen. Good news is Gotwalt predicts gas prices will start to come down after July 4th.
Economy	News 4 @ 10	5/24/11	10:04:27 to 10:06:15		The city finally has a budget plan. A big portion of balancing the budget came from the loss of around 900 city jobs. But the city council did manage to save bus fare increases from going beyond the means of low-income riders. Now, the budget includes 9.5 million dollars in debt that the city still owes. Before, the budget was tentatively approved on May 10th. The council asked the city manager to find another way to balance another 250 thousand dollars so they could keep low-income fares reasonable. Some people, including Councilman Steve Kozachik, asked the council to increase bus fares to save that money. But others said compromises have to be made elsewhere to continue to provide things like mass transit for Tucson residents. The council also held a public hearing on property tax increases. they've got about 2.5 million dollars in settlements they paid out last year to make up for now with a one time property tax increase that would raise rates about 20%. Those rates are set to be adopted on June 7th.

Education	News 4 @ 19	4/19/11	10:04:01 to 10:06:17		Parents are supposed to trust our kid's teachers, and school staff. They should know what's right and wrong when it comes to relationships with our kids. At the rate technology is moving, are schools keeping up? News 4 was contacted by a parent, who told us, her 6th grade son was texting with his school's female nurse assistant. She asked News 4 to investigate. The school's attorney advised that, every year, they hold a seminar that focuses on teacher-student and teacher-teacher relationships. He said this case will be used as an example of drawing boundaries in the digital age.
Education	News 4 @ 5	4/19/11	4:58:58 to 5:01:18		According to the Census Bureau, Tucson's population is growing, up almost 7% in the last 10 years. But Tucson's largest school district saw an opposite trend, student enrollment is down. School officials told News 4 there are many contributing factors to the decline enrollment, but mostly it is the economy, and it's affecting the budget. Also, people who are moving to Tucson have no children, and those who do, move to outlying areas where housing is more affordable. TUSD Officials said they are confident once the economy picks up so will enrollment.

Education	News 4 @ 10	4/25/11	10:00:10 to 10:02:47		On 4/25, we could see another tweak to the Ethnic studies program in the Tucson Unified School District. Some say, it was to get ahead of the state audit that could be released this summer. The law took effect December 31, 2010, banning the Ethnic studies classes. Many said Ethnic Studies divided students by race and promotes racial resentment. TUSD said it's classes are in compliance with the law. A couple of months ago, the State Department of Education launched an audit to see if that's true. If it's found in violation, TUSD could lose 10% of it's state funding.
Education	News 4 @ 6:30	5/2/11	6:35:45 to 6:37:49		A Santa Rita High School Student fought back after she said she was told to leave school for wearing a t-shirt that memorialized her deceased friend. She's a senior at Santa Rita High School and set to graduate in May, and wears the shirt twice a year... on the anniversary of her friend's death, and again on his birthday. TUSD said they're reviewing their policy on the memoriam shirts. She plans to continue wearing it, and continue fighting despite the fact she's graduating in May. Education	News 4 @10	5/20/11	10:00:10 to 10:02:16		An emergency meeting at TUSD headquarters was held to talk about the questionable graduation of 140 high school seniors. These seniors failed the aims test, and were, until recently, under the impression that they could graduate with their class. Students were led to believe they could make up those missed points by completing extra course work like Saturday school. Turned out that was the old way of doing things. TUSD Superintendent recommended the board make a one time exception in the policy this year to let the students walk in their graduation ceremonies. But this does not mean they've completed high school. They will have to complete the graduation requirements later on.
Education	News 4 @ 10	5/23/11	10:04:58 to 10:06:55		The union that represents every certified teacher employed by TUSD pushes every Monday night to reach a deal on contracts with the school district. There's still no deal with the school district. They will continue to meet every Monday night until a deal is reached. If a deal is not met by the end of the school year, they'll have to start asking the governing board for 30 day extensions of their current contract until something is locked down.
